April 2024

April has arrived, and it feels like just yesterday we were welcoming the new year! Time truly does have a way of sneaking up on us.

Planning for Summer...

Students may be questioning how to make the most of their summer and we want to help them if they are seeking guidance! While each student has unique circumstances, such as when their summer starts and ends, or whether they need to hold a job or not, we hope that these ideas help spark interest and excitement for the upcoming months!

- Summer Missions-There is still time for students to apply! Whether they have a preference for stateside or international, big-city or beachside, students are able to filter and sort through a mission that is most suitable for them here! Mission trips start as early as May-please encourage students to apply as early as possible.
- Internships-Have students take this chance to browse through the available internship positions that are local (or far!) from their location, polish their resume, and craft compelling cover letters. Internships can be a stepping stone toward their professional goals, so encourage students to make the most out of this opportunity!
- Get Ahead on Courses-Perhaps a student is feeling burned out by their course load during the year, or he/she is an athlete and is trying to find better balance with their academics. Encourage the student to see if any courses are available during the summer months to help alleviate stress in the upcoming months!
- Networking-Have students attend networking events, informational interviews, or career fairs to connect with professionals in their fields of interest and expand their professional network. Students can begin making these connections prior to graduation, maintain the relationships throughout their studies, and ask about employment opportunities closer to graduation!
